

TWO ON THE ISLE

Dear Solvers,

Allow me a note before we start. While the theme of this year's puzzles -- elemental forces at work in the Hawaiian islands -- was chosen and developed months ago, it would be both difficult and inappropriate not to acknowledge the sad circumstances in which they debut.

My heart goes out to those who've suffered losses on Maui in recent weeks. All contributions to this year's Tip Jar will be split between the Trevor Project (<https://www.thetrevorproject.org/>) and the Maui Strong Fund (<https://www.hawaiicommunityfoundation.org/strengthening/maui-strong-fund>). While there's no suggested tip amount, perhaps consider what you might pay per person to enjoy a movie, escape room, or similar. And if you've been enjoying these puzzle sets without having tossed anything into the jar before, this might be a great year to consider doing so.

And speaking of puzzles!

- Each puzzle in this set will yield one answer. All answers and some clue phrases may be confirmed in the answer checker, though it is not strictly necessary to do so.
- To access the final puzzle, enter the initial trigrams of any 11 puzzle answers, in alphabetical order, as one string in any answer checker.
- When you have the final answer, please send it to me at markhalpin3 at gmail dot com to get a place on the Leaderboard. The first pair or solo solver to do so will win a one-year subscription to Outside the Box puzzles. One other solver drawn at random from all those submitting the correct answer before Monday, September 18th will receive a one-year subscription to P&A magazine. At that point, I'll post hints and solutions. If you're not interested in the Leaderboard or prizes, feel free to contact me for hints or nudges. As ever, the point of the thing is to have fun, so if there's anything I can do to facilitate that, please don't hesitate to let me know.
- All puzzles may be printed to solve, and using online resources is fair game. Specific knowledge of the inspirational source material is not required, and flavortext is often clueful.

PELE AND POLI'AHU

Long ago, a holua (land surfing) contest took place between Pele, the hot-tempered goddess of volcanoes, and her rival Poli'ahu, the frosty goddess of snow. Ranging over miles, their violent attacks on each other during this contest formed the caves and glaciers of Mauna Kea and the lava pools and mountains of Laupāhoehoe. Indeed, the evidence of their ongoing animosity is visible everywhere on the islands.

The other gods, spirits and kapua of Hawaii (a few of whom are introduced in the puzzles on the next pages) looked on, some taking Poli'ahu's side, and some Pele's. But they all knew that this was just the latest bout in the pair's eternal struggle.

What had Pele done to Poli'ahu to instigate their feud?

HALOANAKA

Pity Wakea, the sky god, and Ho'ohokukalani, the keeper of the stars. Believing their infant son to be dead, they buried him in sun-warmed soil on the side of a mountain. But Haloanaka rose from the earth as the beautiful taro plant. Season after season he returns, perpetually sustaining all Hawaiians, his descendants, as he'll do until the end of time.

Putting together a fertile patch of soil is difficult in mountainous terrain. The back parts of twenty clues (each comprising the clue's complete definition or wordplay portion) should be detached from their current clues and paired with new front parts. For each new clue formed this way, note its first and last letters.

The remaining clues must all be cultivated by adding a single letter in order to parse them correctly. In clue order, the letters added to the wordplay portions of clues will help you draw a map, and those added to the definition parts of clues will tell you what to do with it.

ACROSS

- 1 Kensington dandy ingesting rotten pear concoction in a wine cup

HI'IAKAIKAPUA'ENA'ENA

Hi'iakaikapua'ena'ena, Pele's older sister, is concerned about a number of family members. A healer and the patron of lei-makers, she weaves her garlands of flowers to ward off disease, but when they break apart and become tangled, they're less effective.

KAMAPUA'A

Half hog himself, the god Kamapua'a tries to provide appropriate abodes for his porcine pals, but their rambunctiousness makes it a little tricky.

Row answers are entered sequentially in their indicated rows, one letter per space. Pigpen Plans indicate non-overlapping square or rectangular pens of any size within the grid, each of which will be filled by a clue answer.

Grid letters not contained within any pens will spell out a message related to Kamapua'a's plans.

KU'ULA-KAI

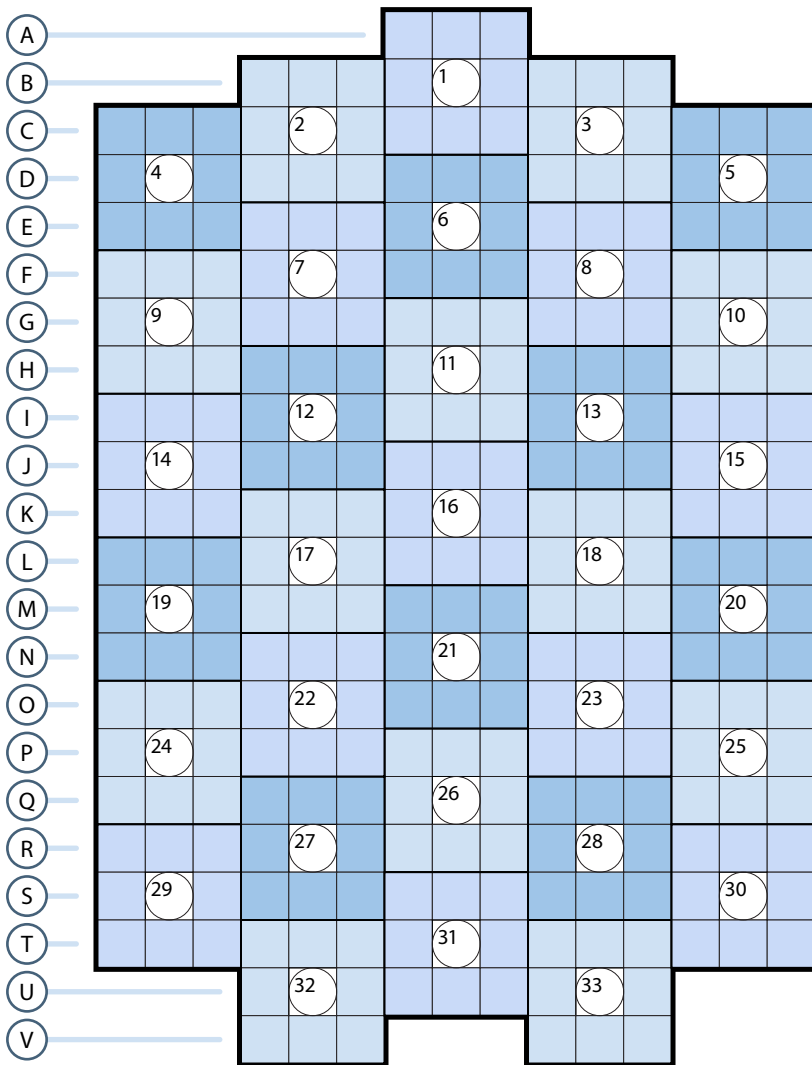

Ku'ula-kai, the god of fishermen, does all in his power to help them.

Ku'ula-kai has dropped stones into each of the numbered spaces in the pools below. Each of the Pools answers is 8-letters long and surrounds its stone, beginning in any space and going in any direction. Rows answers are entered left to right in clue order.

Some of the stones are kuula, special stones with the magical property of attracting fish to their pool. The fish try to hide, of course, but disturbances in the water allow them to be found.

LAKA

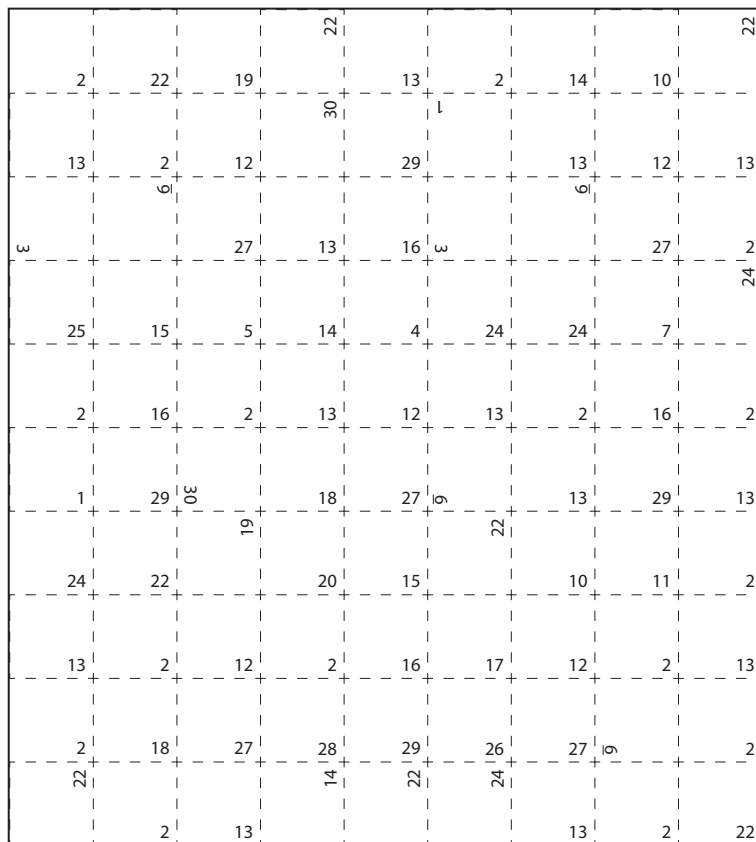

The goddess Laka is the divine force that guides the complex steps of those who dance the Hula. She also provides inspiration for the artist trying to capture the beauty of the dance in a sketch.

First, trace a path from START to FINISH, moving one square at a time horizontally or vertically so that each of the 30 unique symbols shown is visited exactly once.

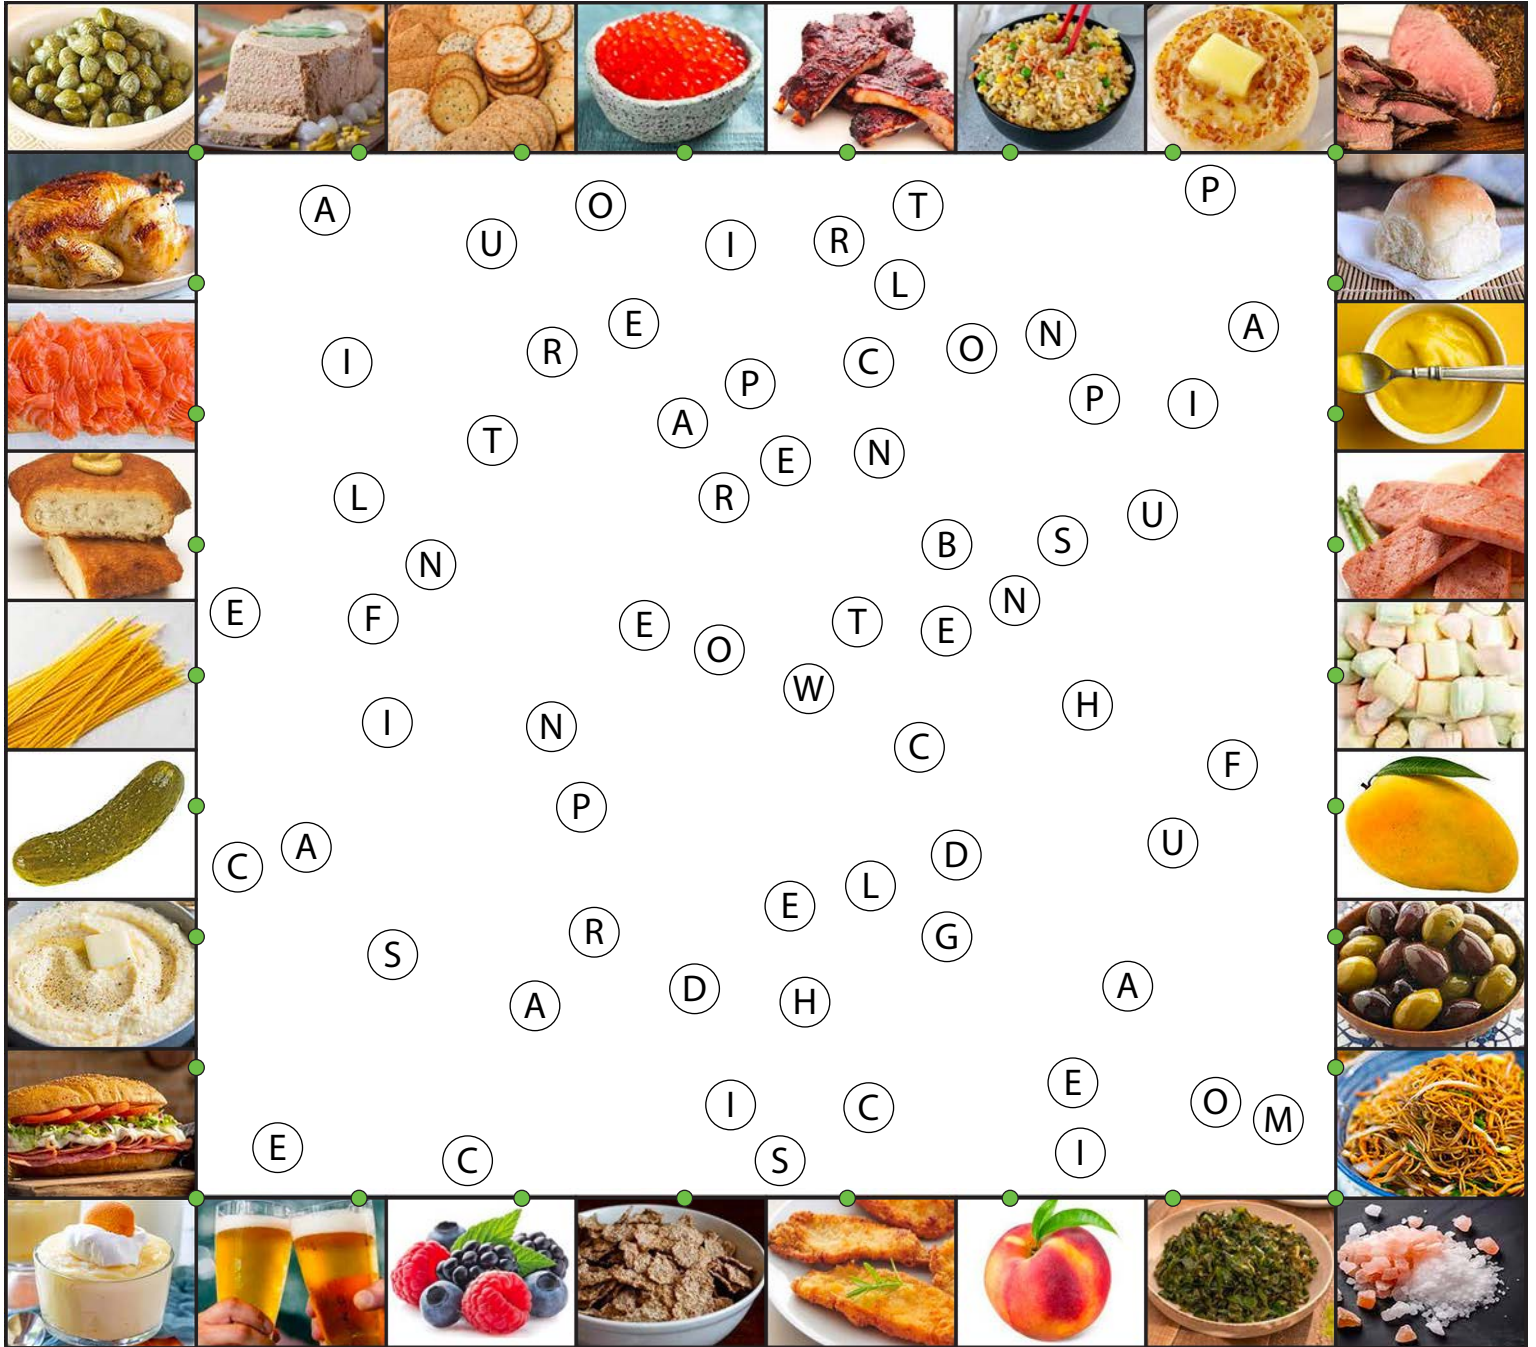

When finished, number the symbols along your path, in order, 1 - 30.

Then, in each square of the grid at right, draw the appropriately numbered symbol, rotating if so indicated by the number in that square.

MOKUALII

Mokualli is the patron of canoe makers, guiding their arms as they hew logs, carve out parts, and make everything connect together correctly.

Answers to Logs clues are entered along the path in order, ignoring the intervening holes. Answers to Pegs clues, which are given out of order, also follow the path, but require the insertion of single-letter "pegs" into some of the holes.
