

NPLabs' new special microscope allows us to examine several microscopic slides at once, giving the scientific community unprecedented advantages at identifying specimens at risk of being completely eclipsed by more dominant species and vanishing into extinction.

